People learn Languages all the time, and for all kinds of reasons.

(1)___For example, you probably have various reasons to study English than your classmates. (2)___But have you ever thought about creating entirely new language from scratch?

(3)___There's been a boom in made-up languages recently, driving by the epic "Lord of the Rings' and other fantasy movies and books.

(4)___The trend has also fueled as more and more people venture online. There are websites, discussion boards, and chat rooms that teach how to build a language, others that share new languages, and some that seek collaborators.

(5)___ Made-up languages aren't restricted on Star Trek fans and Esperanto speakers.

(6)___ It spends time and determination to create a new language. A creator needs to do more than substitute existing words with invented ones. There' s rhythm and intonation to consider-how does the language sound when spoken?

(7)___ If it's invented for humans in a movie or book, how does biology change the sound? How does it represent the culture of the people who speak it? Then there are grammar rules, such as masculine and feminine nouns or verbs, word order, or the use of irregular verbs.

(8)___Even if a simple language can take years to develop. Yet the new languages don't have the same sticking power as real languages like English.

(9)___ As for the made-up languages of today, there are an infinite number of reason behind their creation.

(10)___Some people do it as a hobby, another as a way to relax Some just like the challenge.

TEXT A

Which is safer—staying at home, traveling to work on public transport, or working in the office? Surprisingly, each of these carries the same risk, which is very low. However, what about flying compared to working in the chemical industry? Unfortunately, the former is 65 times riskier than the latter! In fact, the accident rate of workers in the chemical industry is less than that of almost any of human activity, and almost as safe as staying at home.

The trouble with the chemical industry is that when things go wrong they often cause death to those living nearby. It is this which makes chemical accidents so newsworthy. Fortunately, they are extremely rare. The most famous ones happened at Texas City (1947), Flixborough (1974), Seveso (1976), Pemex (1984) and Bhopal (1984).

Some of these are always in the minds of the people even though the loss of life was small. No one died at Seveso, and only 28 workers at Flixborough. The worst accident of all was Bhopal, where up to 3,000 were killed. The Texas City explosion of fertilizer killed 552. The Pemex fire at a storage plant for natural gas in the suburbs of Mexico City took 542 lives, just a month before the unfortunate event at Bhopal.

Some experts have discussed these accidents and used each accident to illustrate a particular danger. Thus the Texas City explosion was caused by tons of ammonium nitrate, which is safe unless stored in great quantity. The Flixborough fireball was the fault of management, which took risks to keep production going during essential repairs. The Seveso accident shows what happens if the local authorities lack knowledge of the danger on their doorstep. When the poisonous gas drifted over the town, local leaders were incapable of taking effective action. The Pemex fire was made worse by an overloaded site in an overcrowded suburb. The fire set off a chain reaction on exploding storage tanks. Yet, by a miracle, the two largest tanks did not explode. Had these caught fire, then 3,000 strong rescue team and fire fighters would all have died.

1. Which of the following statements is true?
  - A. Working at the office is safer than staying at home.
  - B. Travelling to work on public transport is safer than working at the office.
  - C. Staying at home is safer than working in the chemical industry.
  - D. Working in the chemical industry is safer than traveling by air.

2. Chemical accidents are usually important enough to be reported as news because _____.
  - A. they are very rare
  - B. they often cause loss of life
  - C. they always occur in big cities
  - D. they arouse the interest of all the readers

3. According to passage, the chemical accident that caused by the fault of management happened at _____.
  - A. Texas city
  - B. Flixborough
  - C. Seveso
  - D. Mexico City

4. From the passage we know that ammonium nitrate is a kind of _____.
  - A. natural gas, which can easily catch fire
  - B. fertilizer, which can't be stored in a great quantity
  - C. poisonous substance, which can't be used in overcrowded areas
  - D. fuel, which is stored in large tanks

5. From the discussion among some experts we may conclude that _____.
  - A. to avoid any accidents we should not repair the facilities in chemical industry

- B. the local authorities should not be concerned with the production of the chemical industry
  - C. all these accidents could have been avoided or controlled if effective measure had been taken
  - D. natural gas stored in very large tanks is always safe longer time to bring a lawsuit claim, older men work fewer weeks per year, are less likely to be hired, and less likely to be fired than men in states where they do not have as much.

Not many people would suggest that we go back to a world prior to the Age Discrimination in Employment Act, in which advertisements specify the specific ages of people they are willing to hire. However, legislation prohibiting discrimination is no panacea ( ). The recent proposed congressional legislation could have both positive and negative effects on potential older workers.

6. A lot of cases of age discrimination are not found because
- A. age discrimination law was just introduced recently.
  - B. other discriminated groups don't sue except the whites.
  - C. age discrimination cases are in large quantity and it is difficult to detect all of them.
  - D. many discriminated people don't sue and costs of a lawsuit outweigh potential benefits.

- A. younger male applicants are more likely to be hired than their female counterparts.
  - B. age discrimination is quite common in hiring process.
  - C. the author collected information by interviewing female applicants.
  - D. female applicants who are 50 years old will never have a chance to get a job.
8. What may lead to the increase of discrimination lawsuits during times of high unemployment?
- A. The increase of age discrimination.
  - B. The decrease of age discrimination.
  - C. The decrease of opportunity cost to lawsuits.
  - D. The increase of opportunity cost to lawsuits, .
9. From the last paragraph, we learn that
- A. employers could specify the ages of people they want to hire in the past.
  - B. all employers recruited workers through advertisement in the past.
  - C. legislation prohibiting discrimination can't free old workers from age discrimination.
  - D. the recent proposed congressional legislation is ineffective.
10. The author is ___ when he analyzes the age discrimination issue.

TEXT C

In some countries where racial prejudice is acute, violence has so come to be taken for granted as a means of solving differences, that it is not even questioned. There are countries where the white man imposes his rule by brute force; there are countries where the black man protests by setting fire to cities and by looting and pillaging. Important people on both sides, who would in other respects appear to be reasonable men, get up and calmly argue in favor of violence – as if it were a legitimate solution, like any other. What is really frightening, what really fills you with despair, is the realization that when it comes to the crunch, we have made no actual progress at all. We may wear collars and ties instead of war-paint, but our instincts remain basically unchanged. The whole of the recorded history of the human race, that tedious documentation of violence, has taught us absolutely nothing. We have still not learnt that violence never solves a problem but makes it more acute. The sheer horror, the bloodshed, the suffering mean nothing. No solution ever comes to light the morning after when we dismally contemplate the smoking ruins and wonder what hit us.

The truly reasonable men who know where the solutions lie are finding it harder and harder to get a hearing. They are despised, mistrusted and even persecuted by their own kind because they advocate such apparently outrageous things as law enforcement. If half the energy that goes into violent acts were put to good use, if our efforts were directed at cleaning up the slums and ghettos, at improving living-standards and providing education and employment for all, we would have gone a long way to arriving at a solution. Our strength is sapped by having to mop up the mess that violence leaves in its wake. In a well-directed effort, it would not be impossible to fulfill the ideals of a stable social programme. The benefits that can be derived from constructive solutions are everywhere apparent in the world around us. Genuine and lasting solutions are always possible, providing we work within the framework of the law.

Before we can even begin to contemplate peaceful co-existence between the races, we must appreciate each other's problems. And to do this, we must learn about them: it is a simple exercise in communication, in exchanging information. 'Talk, talk, talk,' the advocates of violence say, 'all you ever do is talk, and we are none the wiser.' It's rather like the story of the famous barrister who painstakingly explained his case to the judge. After listening to a lengthy argument the judge complained that after all this talk, he was none the wiser. 'Possible, my lord,' the barrister replied, 'none the wiser, but surely far better informed.' Knowledge is the necessary prerequisite to wisdom: the knowledge that violence creates the evils it pretends to solve.

11. What is the best title for this passage?

non-credit courses in ceramics Perhaps an occasional cocktail party Dinner Football or baseball on TV Each day the same Never any growth in expectations—unless it is growth because the husband has succeeded The inevitable question: “Is that all there is to life?”

The rapid growth of many feminist organizations attests to the fact that these radical feminists had touched some vital nerves The magazine “Ms.” was born in the year of the death of the magazine “Life.” But too often the consciousness-raising sessions became ends in themselves Too often sexism reversed itself and man-hating was encouraged Many had been with the male chauvinist.

It is not difficult, therefore, to detect a trend toward moderation Consciousness-raising increasingly is regarded as a means to independence and fulfillment, rather than a ceremony of fulfillment itself Genuine independence can be realized through competence, through finding a career, through the use of education Remember that for many decades the education of women was not supposed to be useful.

Healthy Food

An active lifestyle and a healthy, fish-rich diet are not only good for your heart, they may also help tackle the memory loss associated with old age, two leading neuroscientists said on Wednesday.

As people live longer, finding ways of halting the decline in mental agility is becoming increasingly important, said Professor Ian Robertson, director of the Institute of Neuroscience at Trinity College Dublin.

"The biggest threat to being able to function well and properly is our brains," he told journalists.

"There is very strong evidence, particularly in the over-50s, that the degree to which you maintain your mental faculties depends on a handful of quite simple environmental factors," he said.

Those who remained physically fit, avoided high stress levels and enjoyed a rich and varied social life are better equipped to stay alert as they age. Mental stimulation, learning new things and simply thinking young also help.
